

TIME2000: A Math-Teaching Program

Division of Education

Do you love math and helping people learn?
Would you like a scholarship to help pay for college?

Queens College's TIME2000 (Teaching Improvements through Mathematics Education) is a unique secondary mathematics teacher-preparation program that offers scholarships toward the cost of your tuition.

Students in TIME2000 major in mathematics education. Upon graduation and completion of New York State examinations, they are fully qualified to teach math in grades 7 through 12.

TIME2000 students become part of a close-knit learning community in which they take their math and education courses together, engage in study groups, and attend seminars, conferences, and off-campus events. They also benefit from the close guidance and support of faculty who teach in the program.
